[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] NORFOLK, January 6, 1888. This morning while one of the oxdrivers of the navy-yard, Michael Carnivan, was hauling heavy timber from the dock, by some means he was caught under an immense stick that slipped from a carry-log and had his logs broken and was terribly crushed about the body. He was taken to the dispensary for attention, thought he will die. The naval board, of which Captain George C. Remey is president, engaged in surveying the United States steamer Galena finished their labors to-day. They found the ship in much better condition than expected, and the cost of reexceed the 20 per cent. limit fixed by Congress as the maximum amount to be expended upon every ves-
